Particulars of the Scheme for a New Cattle Pool.

Commissioner Johnston Reports on Pacific Roads.

Editors at Denver.

DENVER, September 13. The [illegible] convention of the National Editorial Association assembled at the Chamber of Commerce rooms this morning. Hon. Thomas M. Bowen, president of the association, called the meeting to order. He welcomed the visitors to the city, and hoped that while they were here they would enjoy themselves. He said that not less than 250 editors had registered as members of the union. The object of the meeting was the want of [illegible] their profession such a consummation as would be beneficial and pleasant to all. He said it was a matter for congratulation that so many were present, for it showed that their was vitality in the [illegible] of the association that so many had come from so many states and territories to participate in the exchanges.

The following committee on credentials was then appointed: Messrs. Hoffer, Minnesota; McCabe, Missouri; Chassette, Rabee, Wisconsin; West, West Virginia; and Jones, Louisiana, who shortly afterwards brought in their report showing an attendance of about 100 delegates from many states, which was adopted. Corresponding Secretary Baker, of Colorado, then read his report to the executive committee, which, on the request of each committee, was read to the convention and adopted. Secretary Gilbert read the report of the committee on by-laws and constitution which as amended was adopted.

Late in the afternoon members of the convention took part in the public parade on the occasion of the opening of the Denver exposition, which was headed by the chamber of commerce. After the evening session the president delivered a most able address which resulted in a committee being appointed to consider the propriety of such journals, and a committee of nine to consider the law of libel. Secretary Baker then read a poem, after which A. W. Farnum, in the absence of Col. Bob, delivered an address on the "New South."

The Exposition Opened.

DENVER, September 13. The industrial exposition was opened to-day under most favorable circumstances. Most of the business houses closed during the afternoon, and nearly all manufactures and mercantile establishments were represented in the parade which was one of the largest ever seen in the city of Denver. Governor Adams made the opening address and was followed by many other prominent citizens. The exposition will be open until the last of October and may be made permanent.

The New Cattle Scheme.

CHICAGO, September 13.—Details are being supplied regarding the new scheme on hand or about to be perfected for the disposal of the cattle upon a thousand hills in the great west. It involves an arrangement with Armour & Co. and the cattle pool, by which it is proposed to have the former handle the cattle of the pool at a stipulated price per head for killing and commissions for selling.

A reporter for the Times called on Mr. A. [illegible] of Armour & Co. and referred to Mr. Morton for an explanation of the move. Mr. Morton said no arrangement had yet been perfected, but the time was set. Mr. Mercer, connected with Armour & Co. and Representative to Western cattle owners, were successful with their present arrangement of dispensing of their cattle. They thought they were being robbed by dealers and commission men. Mr. Mercer had said he knew better, but he could not help it. The cattle they were compelled to dispose of at a sacrifice. He had ask Armour & Co. to make an offer of a specific scheme for handling for the cattle which belonged to a number of combined men, and they had proposed to kill all the cattle for $2.50 a head and assume the risk of losing the beef, etc., in the market. If the proposition should be accepted and be, it would save about freights which have recently annoyed us for several months, and the cattle state of affairs would be much the same effect. If the plan goes into effect the cattle pool will send their cattle to Chicago, where we will kill them and put the future product and return to the pool the cash after taking out the $2.50 for killing and the commissions for selling.

We can take care of a little cattle only [illegible] as no matter how heavily they may be loaded. We will be expected with such an arrangement as it will be our business to [illegible] better than the present plan for [illegible] will mean [illegible] competitors and it will be [illegible] for the cattle dealers. I have [illegible] arrangement with [illegible] Federation to-day. Here people in Wyoming, Colorado, Montana, Wyoming, New Mexico and other districts. We do not know what the arrangement will be perfected before the [illegible] as an extension of the present [illegible] It will certainly be [illegible] and it will be settled.

Rejected manuscript will be returned only when stamps for that purpose are inclosed with the request. Letters on business connected with the office should be addressed to the publishers, and not to individuals connected with the paper.

Appearently the Bulgarians are thoroughly aroused. Those who remember them as the degraded subjects of Turkey and as the humble subjects of a tyrannical and fanatical master will hardly recognize in them the same people. To a certain extent they must be grateful to England and to Russia for their liberation. To England especially they should be grateful for that was statute was unasked. The Russian bear had his claw bent as his far for a long time. Matters were not ripe. A favorite word with the Russian diplomatists—affairs at the east hold the attention of the government. Now the season has come for an attack on Constantinople, that goal toward which the eyes of the czars have ever been fixed since the irruption of the Turks in 1453 and the fall of the Byzantine empire. The moral claim which Russia puts forward is the marriage of their ruler to the daughter of the last Greek [illegible] of Constantinople. It is for this marriage that the Russian imperial ensign bears the double eagle.
